Source Template (Left Column):

- Placeholder: `[[Integrated Management System|More about this application ...]]`
- Instruction: `Use BlueSpice to combine various management systems such as knowledge or quality management to a system of holistic corporate management.`
